

Janalee Reineke Lyth

Occupational Therapist, Ergonomic & Functional Abilities Consultant

As an occupational therapist, certified disability case manager, and ergonomic consultant, Ms. Reineke Lyth brings to our team broad experiences within the rehabilitation spectrum. She is known for her comprehensive analysis of each individual, addressing their unique needs for problem solving implementation, thus enabling them to function comfortably, safely, and independently, whether at home or at work. Through dynamic interaction and interfacing closely with key players such as medical providers, family members, employers, insurance referrers, attorneys, trustees and others, creative solutions are provided to assure successful client-based outcomes. Ms. Reineke Lyth's strong clinical skills have enabled clients to experience a high level of independence within their functional capabilities by adapting their home and work environments to optimize their access and safety needs.

Her strong clinical and managerial background has included working for major and national healthcare and business corporations in a variety of capacities. This has included promoting integrated disability management programs with successful "stay and work" and "return to work" outcomes resulting in significant financial savings. She has authored several publications and is a frequent speaker at professional and national conferences.

Personally and professionally, Ms. Reineke Lyth strongly believes that one's disability or unique functional challenges can be an asset, as every person is a contributing citizen. It is her endeavor to help them find the tools to enjoy a meaningful quality of life. She brings enthusiasm, strong interpersonal skills and sensitivity towards creating positive results for each person.
