

Erin Zobel

Designer, Access Specialist, Project Manager

Erin Zobel joined Accessibility Design in 2009. With her background in senior living design and her passion for improving access and independence throughout the home, Erin has quickly become an asset to our team.

As an assistant, Erin's ability to jump into new projects and seamlessly assume responsibilities is what makes her work valuable. Whether assisting with product research, drafting, or report development, she brings added efficiency and accuracy to the designers' work. Her attention to detail and ease under pressure have become essential factors to the success of our projects.

As a designer, clients appreciate Erin's ability to listen to their home access needs on multiple levels, and maintain open lines of communication throughout the project. By understanding the client's lifestyle and challenges, Erin is able to identify effective space planning and product solutions that meet all of the client's needs. To address function, beauty, and budget in a single design solution is always her goal. It is this passion for creative problem solving under the unique constraints each project brings that drives her work and ultimately makes her projects successful.

Erin's dedication to our clients and ability to find innovative solutions for home access challenges is what makes her work stand out and what makes her a valuable member of our team.
