

Jane A. Hampton, CID, CAPS

President, Founder, and Senior Designer of Accessibility Design

Ms. Hampton has broken new ground with her Minneapolis, Minnesota-based design, consultation, and project management firm, which specializes in residential environments for seniors and individuals with disabilities. Licensed as an Interior Designer by the state of Minnesota, Ms. Hampton has a wide range of experience as an Access Specialist and Project Manager.

Ms. Hampton's expertise lies in her ability to integrate beauty, safety, function, and ease of maintenance into residential access creating user-friendly environments for her clients with disabilities. She has worked in residential design, project management, and product specification since 1992 and understands the process and intricate details required for a successful renovation or new construction project. She has been a part of post-catastrophic injury discharge teams, third party/insurance paid projects, workers compensation projects, and government funded home-access programs, evaluated housing options for personal injury attorneys as well as met the needs of referrals from agencies and associations. She also has conducted real estate assessments for realtors and their clients with disabilities.

Ms. Hampton is known for her thoroughness, eye for detail, and project management skills and has received referrals from hospitals, rehabilitation facilities, agencies, medical case managers, and national and regional networks. She has also spoken at regional and national conventions, colleges and universities, and government policy focus groups on the topic of designing for seniors and those with disabilities.

Ms. Hampton, through her company Accessibility Design, is providing a broad spectrum of services to individuals and families. She has captured the essence of universal design by refining residential access and independent living.
